Monographs

Orchowska, J. (2022). Białe plamy. Mieszkańcy Warszawy o usługach publicznych [White spots. Residents of Warsaw on public services]. Warsaw: Scholar Publishing House.

- The monograph, a pioneering study of the social costs of uneven urban development, received widespread acclaim and media attention. It was distinguished by the Research Committee on Urban Sociology of the Polish Sociological Association (2023) and the Mayor of Warsaw Prize (2022). Its core ideas were further developed in Orchardowska (2024a; 2024b) and Kościńska (2019).

Głowacka, M., Helak, M., Łukianow, M., Mazzini, M., Orchardowska, J. (2022). Pamiętniki Pandemii [Pandemic Diaries]. Warsaw: Krytyka Polityczna Publishing House.

- The book presents an innovative project and diary competition on the collective experience of COVID-19 in Poland. It showcases my skills in collaboration, project coordination, and resource management, using only internal institutional funding. The project led to several related publications (Głowacka, Helak, Kościńska, 2020; Łukianow et al. 2020; Łukianow, Orchardowska, 2023).

Book Chapters

Orchowska, J. (2024). "Radzimy sobie w taki sposób, że po prostu sobie nie radzimy". Klasa średnia na warszawskim rynku mieszkaniowym. ["We Manage in Such a Way That We Simply Do Not Manage". The Middle Class in the Warsaw Housing Market]. In: Lewenstein, B., Bakalarz, M., Całek, G. (eds.). Warszawa w badaniach społecznych [Warsaw in Social Research], pp. 197–212. Cracow: Impuls.

- In this invited chapter, the initial findings from the "Houses Out of Reach? Housing Strategies of the Urban Middle Class in Poland" project (2023–2024, principal investigator) are presented, highlighting my ability to lead research projects and publish in high-quality national publishing houses.

Kościńska J., Herbst M. (2019). An interdisciplinary approach to the persistent effects of the Polish partitions on educational achievements. In: M. Molema, S. Svensson (eds.), Regional Economic Development and History (pp. 63–81). Abingdon, New York, NY: Routledge.

- This invited chapter outlines the methodology of the project "Persistent Effects of Historical Partitions...". It highlights my ability to publish as a first author with top international publishers and collaborate effectively in interdisciplinary teams. Findings also appear in Kościńska (2021).
